Sites of the Month - Great Sites To Check Out In June

Total Solar Eclipse

space.com – If you love to watch the skies, you won't want to miss the total solar eclipse on August 21. This site provides all the information you need including what to expect, where it will be visible, how long it will last, and what equipment you will need.

137 Summer Dinners

delish.com – Just in time for summer, visit this site to get dozens of "insanely easy" dinner ideas featuring all your favorite warm-weather ingredients. Try Garlic Parsley Shrimp, Balsamic Grilled Chicken and Zucchini, or Beef Stir-Fry with Soba Noodles. Use the links to post, pin, tweet, or email your favorites.

Fun Container Gardening

naturallivingideas.com – If you're low on space or just looking for something new in your garden this year, try containers. This site offers many fun ideas for unique containers such as a watering can, a typewriter, a tree stump, a toy truck, and sea shells — in short, everything including the kitchen sink.

Booking.com

booking.com – Need a place to stay on your next travel adventure? Check out this site, which allows you to explore and make reservations for apartments, guest houses, boats, campsites, B&Bs, hostels, resorts, and — yes! — hotels. Use the simple interface to search or sign up for the "secret deals" newsletter to save.

Short Tutorial/FAQ - What Are The Signs That My Device Has A Virus?

Question: I recently heard a news story about mobile device viruses and am afraid my phone might have one. How can I tell for sure?

Answer: You're smart to ask, considering that we now carry so much personal information on our phones and there are people out there only too happy to take advantage of that fact...
